

I am highly concerned for the direction our country is headed and its decency standards are a big part of that concern. There are too many crimes committed that are sexual in nature, many of which are done to children. Vulgar language also is just a thermometer of how far our country has deteriorated, especially if allowed to be broadcast.

I oppose any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves, even if brief or "fleeting."

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Relaxing the current policy would not serve the public interest and I urge the FCC to reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcast of expletives and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.
